ABSTRACT

Based on a survey conducted by the American Association of Junior Colleges (AAJC), this directory provides information on 912 non-profit, public and private two-year colleges in the United States and its territories, including statistics on 1966-67 enrollments, personnel, and student costs. Following material on the scope and compilation of the directory, an analysis of two-year college growth from 1961 to 1967 is presented. Next, the directory lists the colleges alphabetically by state, including the following information for each: location; chief administrative head; year organized as a junior college; type of control or affiliation; AAJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; programs (i.e., transfer and/or occupational); co-educational or single-sex status; October 1966 enrollment of full- and part-time freshman, sophomore, and unclassified students; October 1966, summer 1967, and October 1967 total enrollments; full- and part-time instructional and administrative faculty in 1966-67; tuition for in-district, out-of-district, and out-of-state students; and fall application deadline. Statewide enrollment summaries are then provided for all institutions and public and independent colleges, followed by tables showing distribution of size of enrollment, independent and church-related schools by type of control, and accredited schools by state. Information on changes in institutions, the AAJC, junior college organizations, and state administrators is presented in the final sections. (AYC)

INTRODUCTION

The American Association of Junior Colleges receives thousands of requests during the course of a year for information about junior and community colleges. Many of the questions asked are rather basic. Where are they located? Are they accredited? What kinds of programs do they offer? Transfer? Occupational? Both? What are their enrollments? How much does it cost to attend? Do they have residential facilities?

The questions come from parents and their sons and daughters, searching for information that will assist them in making appropriate choices about college programs, from university researchers interested in following growth and development of two-year colleges, from government officials studying the potential of these institutions for meeting increased educational needs, and from men and women seeking to enter professional careers in junior college teaching or administration. And from many others who are interested for one reason or another in the phenomenal advance of the institution known variously as the junior college, community college, two-year college, or just plain college.

To help answer some of these basic questions, the American Association of Junior Colleges each year publishes an annual directory of nonprofit two-year junior and community colleges that have regional accreditation, state recognition, or both. The Directory serves as a guide for those who would seek more specific and detailed information from individual institutions. AAJC represents a majority of the country's junior and community colleges, which are joined in the national organization for professional development. The Directory, however, lists nonmember as well as member colleges.

The Directory in 1968 contains names and data for colleges located in all the fifty states, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone. In addition, the report lists institutional members of AAJC located in Canada, France, Switzerland, and Turkey.

During the past several years, many national groups, education leaders and government spokesmen have called for expansion of educational opportunity on a universal basis to at least two years beyond high school. Information collected by AAJC for the annual Directory would seem to suggest that in many places that call is being answered through the establishment of two-year community colleges that offer a wide variety of educational programs to meet the interests and needs of the many as well as the few. For the past seven years, new two-year institutions have been established at the rate of from thirty-five to fifty annually. An unprecedented number of new colleges opened in fall of 1967, as shown in the Directory (see Analysis on page 6). The establishment of Nevada Community College at Elko, Nevada, closed a gap in community junior college development across the country. Every state now has at least one two-year college.

Acceptance of the opportunities offered by community junior colleges is reflected in the increased enrollments reported in the Directory. More significant, perhaps, is the fact that the new colleges opened with a total of about 65,000 students, many of whom would not otherwise have entered college in 1967.

In addition to enrollment data, the Directory contains information on tuitions and fees, on programs, accreditation, control, types of institutions, Association membership, and on numbers of personnel employed in the colleges. There are also summary tables on enrollments by state, size of institutions, and other data.

Information was obtained through a questionnaire survey. The Association, therefore, has relied heavily on the reporting institutions for accuracy of all information contained in the Directory. More detailed data on junior colleges may be found in the seventh edition of American Junior Colleges (1967), edited by Edmund J. Gleazer, Jr., and published by the American Council on Education, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

The American Association of Junior Colleges in general follows the criteria established for American Junior Colleges in determining those institutions to be included in the Directory. That is, institutions included were those accredited or recognized by the country's six regional accrediting agencies and state level agencies authorized to approve junior colleges. The Directory does not include proprietary colleges.

The editorial staff for the 1968 Directory includes William A. Harper, Jack C. Gernhart, and Kathi Borsoni. The Association acknowledges the expert assistance provided by the Research Division of the National Education Association in processing information collected for the report.

An Analysis

While the 1968 Directory is prepared principally as a guide to certain basic information about two-year colleges, the data collected for the publication also provide revealing insights into growth and development in the field which it covers. An analysis of the current Directory, which contains information for the academic year 1966-67 and the fall of 1967, reveals the following major points:

1. Continued rapid increase in the establishment of new institutions
2. Increasing acceptance of the junior college idea as demonstrated by substantial upward trend in enrollments
3. Phenomenal increase in enrollments for institutions that opened two years ago.

The consistent increase in junior college enrollments over the past six years continues to be revealed in the increases for 1967. This growth is summarized as follows:

GROWTH IN NUMBER AND ENROLLMENT OF JUNIOR COLLEGES
1961-1967

Year	Number of Colleges	Enrollment	Percent of increase in enrollment
1961	678	748,619	–
1962	704	818,869	9.38
1963	694	927,534	13.27
1964	719	1,043,963	12.55
1965	771	1,292,753	23.83
1966	837	1,464,099	13.25
1967	912	1,671,440	14.16

This information is shown graphically in Figures 1 and 2.

Confirming data was obtained from seventy-two new colleges and campuses that opened in 1967. At least two additional institutions believed to have opened in the fall did not respond to the survey. Data for the seventy-two new institutions responding are reported in Table I, summarized as follows:

Type of College	Number	Initial Fall Enrollments
Public	68	66,056
Private	4	218
	72	66,274

The largest new colleges in terms of enrollments are DeAnza College (California), and Tarrant County Junior College (Texas) with opening enrollments of 5,806, and 4,214, respectively. Illinois and Virginia each opened seven new institutions; Iowa opened six; California and Texas each established five new colleges. The growth in Virginia and Iowa is primarily due to the creation of new state junior college systems.

The number of reporting institutions increased from 837 in 1966 to 912 in 1967 – a net increase of seventy-five colleges during the year. These colleges report a total enrollment of 1,671,440 students, an increase of 207,341 over 1966. This represents an increase of 14.16 per cent in student enrollment, and an increase of 8.96 per cent in reporting colleges. The increase in the number of reporting colleges includes seventy-two new institutions, and thirty-eight institutions already in existence in some form, but listed for the first time. The thirty-eight institutions include four colleges which were newly established in 1966, but not previously reported. It also includes four new colleges in Iowa that have "branches" or "centers" that were previously listed as separate colleges. The figure also includes a number of technical institutes, primarily in North Carolina and Wisconsin, not previously listed. Twenty-nine institutions listed in the 1967 Directory are not listed in the new Directory for a variety of reasons. A list of all changes, with explanations, follows Table VII.

Public junior college enrollments for 1967 were up by 211,240 students over 1966, or an increase of 16.03 per cent. Forty-five states reported overall gains in enrollment, while only three states show a decrease. The greatest increases were reported in Connecticut (46.0 per cent), Hawaii (91.8 per cent), Pennsylvania (43.4 per cent), and Virginia (56.6 per cent).

Of the 648 colleges reporting in 1967, 506 showed gains totaling 269,853 students, while 134 showed net losses of 58,613. Eight colleges reported the same enrollments for both years. The growth in number and enrollments for public junior colleges for the past seven years is summarized as follows:

GROWTH IN NUMBER AND ENROLLMENT OF PUBLIC JUNIOR COLLEGES
1961-1967

Year	Number of Colleges	Enrollment	Percent of increase in Enrollment
1961	405	644,968	–
1962	426	713,334	10.59
1963	422	814,244	14.14
1964	452	921,093	13.12
1965	503	1,152,086	25.07
1966	565	1,316,980	14.31
1967	648	1,528,220	16.03

Enrollments in private junior colleges show a decrease of 3,899 students, compared to the 1966 figures, or a national decrease of 2.65 per cent. Twenty-two states showed increases, while twenty-one states showed decreases. Despite the fact that ten private colleges with 3,614 students are being listed for the first time, nineteen private colleges that had a 1966 enrollment of 7,990 students are not listed in this Directory. Six private colleges having a 1966 enrollment of 507 suspended instruction during 1967. The remaining thirteen colleges, having a 1966 enrollment of 7,483, either became four-year institutions or their two-year programs were absorbed by senior institutions. Of the 264 institutions reported in this Directory, 145 showed gains of 12,620 students, while 111 reported losses of 7,027. Eight institutions reflect no change in enrollment.

A significant increase in enrollments is shown for fifty-six institutions that opened in 1966 and for which the Directory shows a gain of 63.4 per cent from a 1966 enrollment of 55,600, to a 1967 enrollment of 90,900. This is accounted for by the fact that for the first time these colleges could report both freshmen and sophomore enrollments. Fifty-two of these colleges reported increased enrollments, while only four reported decreased enrollments. Eighteen of these colleges more than doubled their opening year enrollments, while five others reported more than an 80 per cent increase. All five of the private colleges show an increase in enrollment, from a total of 1,186 to a total of 1,578, a gain of 33.0 per cent.

Institutional membership in the American Association of Junior Colleges as of December 31, 1967, reached a new high of 745 members, 711 of which are listed in this Directory, while the other thirty-four are institutions opening in 1968 and 1969. The 711 colleges represent an increase of sixty members over the preceding year. Ten states have 100 per cent membership, and many other states are close to that figure.

Assuming a constant annual increase of 12 per cent in enrollments, projections for the next five years are as follows:

1968	1,872,000
1969	2,097,000
1970	2,348,000
1971	2,629,000
1972	2,940,000

Thus it appears that previous projections of 2 million enrollments by 1970 will be surpassed and that an enrollment of 3 million by 1972 may be expected.

Definitions of Terms

ENROLLMENT

Full-time – Students carrying at least three-fourths (12 or more semester hours) of normal full-time load.

Part-time – Students enrolled in at least one course for credit and carrying less than three-fourths (less than 12 semester hours) of normal full-time load.

Freshmen – Students who have completed less than 28 semester hours of college credit at time of registration.

Sophomores – Students who have completed 28 or more semester hours of credit at time of registration.

Unclassified – Students not counted in any other category who may not have fulfilled the requirements for matriculation or who are enrolled in college-level courses for which they receive no credit. If the junior college has third-year students, these are included under unclassified.

FACULTY

Faculty – Includes all administrative and instructional personnel.

* The Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is the regional accrediting agency for junior colleges in the District of Columbia. District accreditation policies are maintained by the District Board of Education through the office of the Superintendent of Schools. The board licenses and accredits Marjorie Webster Junior College, a proprietary college for women, as well as the nonproprietary institutions listed under the District of Columbia in Table I.
